

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS FOR CHILD CARE PROVIDERS – Resources and Tips

September 2014

Those of us who have survived hurricanes and fierce storms are aware of their potential to cause serious harm and massive destruction. National Preparedness Month is a good time to plan ahead and prepare your emergency kit for the next severe storm or hurricane.

Here are some resources to help you think about what you would do if a hurricane struck near you, what you would need to carry out that plan, and how to respond to children's needs during a hurricane and its aftermath.

Regions Kickoff National Preparedness Month

ACF Region III Administrator Essey Workie writes, “Everyone in our country lives in a potential disaster zone. Whether it’s from an earthquake, hurricane, industrial or nuclear plant accident or severe weather, we all live, work and play in an area that could be hit unexpectedly. It’s for that exact reason that we made the decision to join National Preparedness Month again this year and become more prepared to face an emergency.” Learn what regions are doing this September to prepare communities year-round.
